Ongoing cost of town's street art

ITH all the furore and publicity surrounding the bollards in Thompson Street, Barry, it is now alleged that The Vale Council have already had to do remedial repairs to the plastic coating on these so-called magnificent and meaningful structures – due to evidence of rust.

It may be argued that the money was in the form of a Welsh Assembly grant scheme - but, nonetheless, it is still directly from the taxpayers' pocket. It did not come from the fairies.

It now seems that in order to keep them from rusting, they will need regular inspections and maintenance every year on an ongoing cycle especially after any original warranties have expired - when maintenance and repair costs will be thrust firmly in the lap of the taxpayer.

The photograph (above) clearly shows one of these bollards with slight impact damage, (the cause of which is as yet unknown) and it is starting to rust.

Doubtless, these bollards will suffer endless scrapes and impact damage, so this problem will be ongoing.

At the moment, the bollards are not much more than about four months old.

What state will they be in after 12 months or more, one wonders? Barrie Evans, Barry Island.

Mystery of a wartime mine ago, The .GEM carried an article, accompanied by two photographs, headed 'Graphic pictures that will bring back memories of wartime Barry' (The GEM February 5, 2004).

This describes three German sea mines dropped on Barry Docks in July 1941, killing the first mate on board the SS Highwood.

Of the three mines. one exploded on the quay wall of the dry docks; the second exploded near the basin dock north gate - but the third was lost in thick mud near Rank's Flour

My question is this: is it still there? No-one

ANY years seems to know. If it is, then the recent evacuation of a small German town due to an RAF bomb discovered in the Rhine would be as nothing compared to the evacuation and shutdown required in Barry, on recovery.

Can anyone enlighten or re-assure me and your readers?

He also recalled that when one mine explod-ed, "practically every window in the houses of Barry Dock and the Barry Island area was smashed in'

St Cyres School in Penarth is working alongside a group of local historians to commemorate this event by staging a living history event on Barry Waterfront on the weekend of June 16-17. It will see 100 Britishbased American military re-enactors setting up an authentic WW2 American camp.

They will be staging displays, steam train rides from the Waterfront Halt to Barry Island and educational activities centred around Barry and Penarth Docks, major supply ports in the build-up to D-Day.

There will be 1940s-

N reading The GEM of January 12, I found a letter from a Mr C Short of Barry, who was writing about the Boxing Day meet in Solution to the horse poo?

AM concerned to learn that -Christopher Short, of Barry, was so distressed by the horse manure in Cowbridge at the meet of the Glamorgan Hunt.

He suggests that horses might wear nappies and/or that our local politicians should address the issue (no pun intended).

I contacted Pampers to enquire about equine disposable nappies, but am sorry to report that the lady I spoke to was unable to help as she seemed to be suffering from a mild form of hys-

The prospect of The GEM's pages being filled with photographs of Jane Hutt and Alun Cairns contemplating piles of horse poo is not a pleasant one, so might I suggest the following simple solution? Those of your readers who share Mr Short's Elf'n'Safety concerns could avoid the mean streets of Cowbridge altogether on Boxing

They could join him in spending the holiday at Barry. No danger in the streets there. John Pugh, Aberthin

'CONSIDER SAFETY OF CHILDREN!'

Owners who flout the law on dog fouling should be brought to heel'

A BARRY man has called for dogs to be banned from the Island's main beach and promenade during the winter, after he and his family saw faeces in a number of locations.

Matthew Jones (31) told The GEM: "We went on a trip to the Island which is supposed to be a family environment, but what we saw was disgusting.

"There was dogs mess on the promenade, where the cars are parked and on the beach above where the sea goes so it wouldn't be washed away by the

"I won't go down

there again until dogs are banned.

"The owners have a responsibility to supervise their dogs. Why are dogs being allowed to foul on the pavements?
"I'm not anti-dog – I have relatives with dogs, but the safety of children has to be considered. What we saw was hor-rendous."

Mr Jones said Welsh Water had spent huge amounts of money to ensure that coastal waters impaired with human excrement – and it was ironic that on land, the issue of 'waste' wasn't being dealt with more severely.

Historically, GEM gets more complaints about this issue just after Christmas than at any time of the year. Perhaps some people believe - mistakenly - that dogs' mess will be obliterated by heavy rain or snow, and fail to take the normal steps to tidy up after their pet.

'SHOCK

AND AWE'

Another frustrated Vale resident, Mr Ian Govier from Rhoose contacted The GEM to say the county council should get tough.

He insisted: "Shock and awe is the only way to defeat the dog fouling problem.

"Impose some heavy fines on people and publish their names. That would make them think.

"If people are not carrying poo bags when walking their dogs, there is 95 per cent chance their dog will foul on public footpaths

"These people know what they are doing but do not care, so hit them hard with heavy fines.

CHARITY LIT UP BY £1,129 DONATION

Barry's 'Blue House' shows generosity still exists in hard times

THE extraordinary generosity of the people of Barry in a time of austerity has been demonstrated by 'The Blue House'.

Each festive season Tony and Linda Ware transform their home into a Christmas lights extravaganza for charity and this year they collected £1,219 for CLIC Sargent, a cause that supports children coping with cancer.

The house, in Barrians Way, has become a familiar and popular sight in the lead up to tor, explained: "We've been putting up the lights since 2004 and the response this year was fan-tastic. We want to thank everybody who made donations.

"We're just round the corner from The Cherry Orchard and 'The Blue House' has become quite well known – neighbours get involved too. "The lights go up on December 1 and last for the whole month, and people can make a donation in a bucket.

Among the other charities to benefit from the lights over the years are Ty Hafan, Macmillan and Noah's Ark.

To put this year's figure into context, the previous record was £800 for Noah's Ark - last year's collection reached £450, but was affected by the severe snowfalls.

Local children, like Tony and Linda's daughter, Mollie (12) and son Ben (7), enjoy the lights while funds raised go to a good cause.

Tony added: "All the money this year is going to CLIC Sargent - nothing is taken for the electricity. Recession is a big word at the moment, but people's generosity is still there.

Prosecutor Alex Greenwood said that Mackay was involved in burgling a Spar store at Llanmartin near Newport.

The defendant was caught by police and explained he was a lookout. He said: "I knew what was going on, I was stupid."

Shutters worth £800 were damaged and the thieves made off with cigarettes worth £4,000. At 2am on December 5, said Mr Greenwood, the olice went to the Texaco garage in Cardiff Road, Dinas Powys, and saw Mackay dropping from the roof and fleeing down the road.

He was chased and caught, and back at the garage the police found a rucksack containing tools, including a crowbar.

The cigarette kiosk had been interfered with and nearby were four black bags containing cigarettes worth £20,000.

Barry man is jaileď after a 'vicious' attack

CATERING worker has been jailed for 27 months at Cardiff Crown Court for carrying out a "vicious and cowardly attack".

Michael Bisgrove (24) of Porthkerry Road, Barry, admitted causing Richard Hamilton actual bodily harm, burglary, aggravated vehicle ing, dangerous driving and possessing an offensive weapon.

Prosecutor Julian Prosecutor Julian Greenwood said that on August 20, Mr Hamilton, aged 41, left his flat in Llandough and went to the home of his sister for drinks. He returned to his flat at about 2.20am and found the front door was ajar and the door frame split.

A man appeared and "Come inside." Seconds later, Bisgrove, who he knew, jumped on him from behind and threw him to the ground, where he was punched and kicked.

Mr Hamilton succeeded in running off, but was chased by Bisgrove and another person and in Pinewood Close was held in a headlock and repeatedly punched.

Neighbours saw this ssault and were aware of Mr Hamilton being stamped upon. He was later treated for cuts, grazes and swellings at the University Hospital

Mr Hamilton later discovered that property had been taken from his flat, where Bisgrove's footprints were discovered

While on bail, said Mr Greenwood, Bisgrove took a car from outside a house in Dinas Powys. It was spotted by police in the Pengam area of Cardiff and police followed it along roads in Cardiff Bay at 60mph, as Bisgrove acc accelerated

He was eventually stopped and he was found to have a pink sock containing a padlock, which constituted an offensive weapon.

cer John Rogers, is a regular visitor to All Saints Church in Wales Primary School and, at a recent visit, he gave an important talk entitled 'Be Safe. Be Seen'.

He demonstrated a range of reflective accessories and emphasised to the children that, on dark mornings and evenings, the journey to and from school can be very dangerous and children wearing dark clothing cannot be easily seen by motorists.

The children had lots of fun trying out the various items and were reminded of the important rules of road safety.

Headteacher Richard Ware reemphasised the importance of visibility when crossing busy roads and thanked Mr Rogers for another important lesson in keeping safe.

Golf Club Hope yet for Brynhill

THEN a leaflet from Hope for the Vale dropped through my letterbox I attended the recent public meeting in Highlight Community Centre regarding the proposed building of 180 new homes on land to be purchased from Brynhill Golf Club.

The meeting was well attended, but not as packed as the meeting for the Tesco issue several years ago.

On the top table were the usual politicians; Mr Kemp, Mr Cairns MP, Jane Hutt AM and a few minor councillors. The meeting began with some really constructive comments made by members of the public, but there were several instances of totally unproductive bickering from opposing members of the golf club. The often-repeated advice from the politicians was that petitions were far less effective than let-ters, so folks were urged to write personal letters.

Twice Mr Cairns strenuously advocated married couples should each write a letter to swell the numbers.

I have no issue with petitions and letters, and will certainly forward this one to the debate, but I have to ask, what good did this means of public protest do to preserve such things as the closing of one of the last remaining open air swimming pools in Wales, or closing the only cinema in Barry, our Magistrates Court or moving our driving test centre to Cardiff, and at huge unnecessary cost to taxpavers, back to Barry

What is at stake here is much bigger and more far reaching than a local golf club selling green belt land for housing.

It's the finger out of the dyke, the unstoppable snowball rolling down the hill that will ultimately swallow up ever more land from the heritage that is the unique Vale. Barrie David Corcoran.

CHURCH CELEBRATES

On Sunday January 22, All Saints Church, Victoria Square, Penarth will mark the completion of its recent interior conversion project with a day of celebration!

At 10am there will be a special service at which the Archbishop of Wales, Most Rev Barry Morgan, will re-dedicate the building. At 6pm All Saints will welcome members of other Penarth churches to a united service to mark the 'Week of Prayer for Christian Unity'. All welcome.

AN exhibition by two 'war and conartists' in Barry will be the centre-piece of the Vale's commemoration of Holocaust Memorial Day.

The exhibition, called 'Blue Line', offers the chance to see the dramatic and moving work of Polish artist Maciej Hoffman, whose paintings will be shown alongside the work of Welsh artist, Nicola Tucker, which sensitively examines issues around the theme of Holocaust.

Thunder and lightning nothing to these 14 intrepid walkers! Hill turned inky black

A FREAK storm with lightning, a huge thunderbolt and hailstones that made the pavements and roads white occurred not long before Janet and John were due to lead a walk at Cardiff Bay, and they were astonished on their arrival at Cogan Leisure Centre to find a group of 14 walkers all togged to go.

This walk formed part of the Festival of Winter Walks. Leaving Cogan, the group crossed up eager and ready

Windsor Road to Cogan Hill and turned down towards the Penarth Marina, where they were hit by the first rainfall.

The Cardiff Barrage lies across the mouth of the bay between Queen Alexandra Dock and Penarth Head and was constructed to make a huge lake, whereas before this the bay was tidal.
Previously, huge mudflats attracted wading birds, but were not very pretty to look at, and now three locks take care of the maritime vessels entering and leaving the bay and a fish pass allows salmon to reach their breeding grounds in the River Taff.

The skies above Garth glass and wood of the and on the English side of the Bristol Channel rainfall or something much worse could be seen travelling towards the east; but the group remained dry as they passed through a corridor between the two which was filled with sunshine.

High in the skies above the north of Cardiff, two arched rainbows hung in the air as the group made their way towards the Norwegian Church, where some of them decided to partake of morning coffee.

For the rest, it was time to explore and eyes were drawn towards the Senedd, which houses the National Assembly and was opened by Queen Elizabeth on March 1, 2006. Next door is the attractive terracotta pierhead Building erected in 1897 and designed by William Frame, whose mentor was William Burgess who refurbished Castell Coch.

It became the administrative office for the Port of Cardiff and the exterior features carved friezes, gargoyles and hexagonal chimneys. Standing above Roald

Dahl Plass, which was previously the oval basin of the dock, the bowllike shape of the plaza has made it a popular place for outdoor concerts and leaning on the railings the sun was sur-prisingly warm for the beginning of January.

Making their way towards the Wales Millennium Centre, they admired the exterior formed of multicoloured slate, collected from Welsh slate quarries. The bronze coloured dome and the inscriptions in calligraphy on the front of the building in both Welsh and English make this a striking building.

Rejoining the group, they made their return towards the Barrage, when views were sud-denly obliterated as they were hit by a ferocious wind that almost lifted them off their feet and heavy rain fell.

However, as soon as they reached the Penarth side, the wind dropped – but the rain continued to fall for the remainder of their journey back.

It is now possible to do so much without having any idea of what is going on inside the machine. You don't need the ability to build a car to drive one, but if it goes wrong – you're stuck. Generally, the more you know about the basics, the better off you are if something does go wrong. It might even be as basic as being able to explain what happened. It could be that the understanding makes you aware of what could go wrong and avoid the problem in the first place.

(As I never tire of pointing out: the only people who never back up their files are those who haven't lost any, yet!)

With all that in mind, last year we introduced some short sessions before the main topic of a meeting. Short sessions enable us to review some of the basics: to help people understand more

If you cannot see the file extension, open any folder; click or Tools > Folder options > View, then untick the box that says 'Hide extensions for known file types' and click Apply. You will then be able to see extensions: Œdoc, for document files; Œxls, for spreadsheet files; Etxt, for text files and so on.

MAN 'LOST HIS RAG' AFTER WIFE'S AFFAI

A LOCAL authority manager "completely lost his rag" when he discovered that his wife of 26 years was having an affair.

Phillip Thomas, 51, went to the Maesteg home of Adam Elward-Jones and repeatedly pummelled him to the face, causing him to end up "like a rag doll".

Mr Elward-Jones, 48, suffered a broken cheekbone and nose, and subsequently lost three stone and also suffers depression.

Thomas, of Litchard Park, Bridgend, a man with no previous convictions, admitted a charge of inflicting grievous bodily harm.

He was jailed for 10 months, the sentence suspended for a year, and ordered to carry out 200 hours unpaid work and to pay his victim £1,000 compen-sation and prosecution costs of £350

Judge Patrick Curran said: "The attack was in the presence of the victim's wife, and he was pummelled repeatedly.

His legs gave way, said Mr Warren, and he slumped onto a sofa, where he was described as looking like a "rag doll". "Mrs Elward-Jones inter-

We are extending this successful scheme following the delivery of support for 90 companies training over 8,000 employees with funding from the European Social Fund and Welsh

This is all good news as we work to support jobs and growth and boost economic prospects for business in Wales.

We can also look at the construction jobs that will be created as we spend our capital programme to capacity, despite the 40 per cent

I am also delighted we are investing in our railways with the funding of an additional platform at Barry Town Station which will boost capacity and frequency of trains on the Vale of Glamorgan line, announced in the National Transport Plan in December.

A sample that I had from one hive did not look to have many mites visible to the naked eye; however, when examined with a large magnifier the count was 450.

Admittedly, I do have a large magnifier with a built-in light and it makes the task of counting much simpler.

Should you get around to checking for mites, especially after an application of Apiguard or such. do not be surprised to end up counting into the thousands.

Lots of bees equate to lots of mites, as their breeding cycle is right in step with that of your

At the moment, I am keen to get a look into any of the hives to see if there is brood in evidence: if I look too soon, there is every chance that my impatience could lead to the chilling of any brood present and this could set back any good start already afoot.

Patience is required, but if the temperatures stay up in the teens, I might just risk a quick look in one hive

Considering the number of years that I have been keeping bees now, there is still that eagerness to peek in and see how well or not they have got on throughout the winter months.

Is spring here yet? A lot of plants think so, and I'm sure the bees do as well

BRYNHILL HOUSING PLAN: OPPOSITION GROUP PREPARES FOR A LONG BATTLE

LOCAL residents presented a united front this week at a public meeting called to oppose plans to build homes on part of Brynhill Golf Club.

The meeting, held on Monday (January 16) at Highlight Park Community Centre discussed the proposals which have been put forward by the golf club and housebuilders Redrow.

Leading the opposition is the residents' group HOPE (Highlight HOPE Organisation Protect our Environment), and it is fair to say that politicians from all parties are lining up alongside

HOPE chairman Jill John told The GEM: "We are delighted that the meeting was so well attended, although we were disappointed that neither Redrow nor

She added: "What really annoys us is the expectation that Redrow will be hiring a team of expensive bar-risters to railroad this plan onto the Local Development Plan Development (LDP).

"We were advised to hire our own barrister. which means we would have to start fundraising to hire someone, and it makes us very angry that Redrow can use its financial muscle this way."

Vale AM Jane Hutt said: "The strength of feeling at the public meeting was clear.
"Widespread concerns about the impact on access and traffic congestion, as well as the adverse environmental impact of this development on this green space area of Barry were expressed. "I welcome the good news that the Vale Council has decided not to include the site in the deposit plan for development, based on the sound considerations of its planning department" Conservative councillors Katherine Kemp and Marguerita Wright, who represent the Illtyd ward, said: "It was disappointing that neither Brynhill Golf Club nor Redrov Homes, although invit-ed to attend, chose not to send representatives to the meeting.

"Had they done so,
they would have appreciated that the strength of feeling of those pres-ent demonstrated the opposition of residents to the proposals.

"We continue to fully support the efforts of HOPE in the Vale.

Station upgrade 'will boost town regeneration' says the Vale AM

WELSH Government Transport Minister, Carl Sargeant AM, announced the National Transport Plan before Christmas, which included an additional platform to be provided at Barry Town Station.

He recently wrote to Jane Hutt AM to tell her that a new platform on the South side at Barry station is key to the delivery of the plan – which includes proposals for electrification of the Valleys lines network.

Ms Hutt comment-

that the new platform will upgrade the station, creating extra capacity and enabling additional train services to Cardiff Airport and Llantwit Major on the Vale of Glamorgan Line.

"It is also good news that the Department of Transport has released funding for the new footbridge at Barry Island Train station which provides a vital link across the Island.

"It enhances the railway provision to and from the station, contributing to the regeneration of

VALE MP's VIEWPOINT

Brynhill: LDP is the key to planning decisions

ORE than 200 people attended a public meeting in Barry on Monday evening to oppose a plan that could allow the development of 180 houses on Brynhill Golf Club.

The background to this issue is

The background to this issue is relevant to the whole of the Vale because it relates to the Local Development Plan (LDP) and may well be the first of many such meetings across the county.

In summary, the Welsh Government require every local authority to draft an LDP, which is essentially a document that outlines where and where not building is likely to be permitted or rejected until 2026.

Between now and then, I suspect that I will be asked to support or oppose individual planning applications, which I am happy to consider – but in reality, the guide to whether any application will be allowed is contained within this document.

Therefore, this plan is fundamental to individual planning applications over the next 15 years and to the way we want our community to look.

Locals will have little influence to object to a development in two or five years time if it is included in this document.

Likewise, an application to build in an area listed as being protected in the plan will again carry little traction. The local planning committee has the final say on applications, but their decisions will be based on the LDP.

The meeting at Highlight Park, off Port Road, was organised by HOPE, a campaign group that I have been working with, who want to protect their environment.

their environment.

To their credit, they have been working since last March, waiting for the publication of the LDP, because they appreciated its importance.

As a result, they attracted a packed hall to inform locals of the steps they should take to support the council position (as listed in the LDP) - to maintain Brynhill as an area for recreation, not for development.

What is the process from here for all communities across the Vale and what action should you take?

The LDP goes into formal consultation on January 25 for six weeks. The document can be viewed on my website and on the Vale Council's site and, of course, at the council offices. Why not check to see how your community is affected and send in a letter of support or opposition? Be sure that the developers will be keen to send their views in!

The Vale Council will then make amendments to their LDP, probably by the autumn, and then hand over to the Welsh Government. At that stage the Welsh Government will consider the matter and it is likely to hold public inquiries in relation to areas of dispute.

The views you express now will allow the Welsh Government to establish if there is common support or apparent differences with the LDP

At that stage, the Welsh Government will make the final decision. Therefore, the LDP is crucially important to your community.

Don't miss this once in a 15-year opportunity to help shape our environment.

War Horse shows fine pedigree...but is ever so slightly too saccharine!

Spielberg has always seemed to have something of an infatuation with war, either directly (1941, Saving Private Ryan) or indirectly (Schindler's List, the Indiana Jones films). So given a story that is arguably purely arguably purely Spielberg of a young man desperate to be reconnected to his beloved horse, set against a backdrop of World War I, the director is on surer footing than he was with his last directorial outing.

So it's hardly surpris-ing that one of the masters of cinema has conjured up such an endearing and tender story packed full of the ele ments that you would expect from his work; but similarly War Horse, syrupy emotion, result-ing in a film that is grandiose and epic, yet occasionally veers a touch too close to be too saccharine for its own good.

While the success of the stage play has no doubt led to the film being made, the source novel from Michael Morpurgo is where the story comes from. Scriptwriters Lee Hall and Richard Curtis do a sterling job of taking the episodic nature of the tale and adding pace to it. But as good a job as they do with this, the script does stumble a lit-are small moments of beauty that are wonder-fully realised by the screenwriters. The meeting of two opposing sol-diers on no man's land with the sole aim of helping Joey and the tale of a grandfather and his grand-daughter, are just two examples of how. with a little less sugar and a bit more grit, the film could have eschewed its overly emotional tone.

The fragmented nar rative also doesn't really lend itself to any jawdropping performances, though the central pair-ing of Jeremy Irvine as Albert and (yes, I really am saying this) the horse who portray Joey, are exceptional. Irvine, a relative newcomer, anchors the film with a wide-eyed enthusiasm and lively performance. His journey is as important as the one Joey undergoes, while the horses exhibit absolutely superb behav-

While the remainder of the cast are all relatively big names, and as you would expect offer strong turns, the stand-outs are Niels Arestrup as the aforementioned as the aroremenuoned grandfather, Tom Hiddleston as an army captain, and Toby Kebbell, who as one of the soldiers in the no man's land scene, brings degree of brevity to affairs.

Those of a cynical disposition won't find much to savour here, the film requiring you to buy into the bonding power of a horse.

However,if you do then you will find plenty to enjo - even if your teeth will need a clean afterwards, based on the amount of syrup you will be consuming will be consuming through its 146-minute running time.

ary! VERDICT – A solid adaptation livened by epic direction from Steven Spielberg and some strong turns, War Horse is very good but not great. While it plays on the emotion, it doesn't quite deliver the pay-back you would hope for, though you would need a heart as empty as a quarry to not feel something come the end credits! Enjoyable.

Railway book is a labour of love

Railways of South Wales by Adrian Kenny, published by Ian Allan. Review/Mike Wilcock.

HAVING taken almost three years to complete, this 128-page volume of full colour images of railways in south Wales is another book to add to your collection, if you're interested in this fascinating subject.

Being a personal friend of mine, I know Adrian has travelled many miles, and climbed many hills and mountains to take that special image. Unless there's full sun on his subject, he would rather return to his home in Cardiff than take a sub-standard shot.

Locally Adrian has featured passenger railtours at Tondu in the Ogmore Vale, special weed killer trains employed to clear leaves off the line near Barry Docks station, freight trains in Barry Docks and at Barry station the appeal to raise more than £185,500 to provide new lifejackets for its volunteer crews across Wales.

Lifejackets for the lifesavers THE RNLI is launching an

The 31 lifeboat stations will benefit from the fundraising drive, which includes the charity's SOS day on January 27.

The 14 RNLI lifeboat stations from Flint to Aberdyfi will be asked to raise a target sum of £85,000, whilst the stations from Borth to Penarth hope to raise around £100,000. Individual stations have been given a fundraising target, depending on the number of lifejackets that are likely to be needed.

Philip Missen MBE, lifeboat operations manager at Porthcawl said:

FTER a successful launch in Swansea two years ago, the team behind the Thai Elephant restaurant is bringing the formula to Cowbridge – adding another facet to the town's varied dining experiences.

The restaurant gave foodies a sneak preview at the Cowbridge Food Festival, offering samples to passers by, and made quite a hit on the day.

Last week, the restaurant opened with no fuss, and the owner, Aum Rotjarin Scott, told The GEM: "People just came in off the street, and we were soon packed!"

In fact, the staff are hard at work making an upstairs room available – and this will be fitted out in the same style as downstairs.

And that style is bound to cause a few intakes of breath, because the restaurant has been fitted out so that hand-crafted Thai statues and wood carvings are everywhere.

As you walk in the door, you are faced with a wall carving that, says Aum, took one Thai craftsman a year to make.

The restaurant tables are glasstopped, so that diners can look down at the elaborate wood carvings that are feature of each one.

There are golden buddhas and even the chairs in the waiting area are handcrafted, lacquered and modelled on ceremonial elephant seats. It was two years ago that Aum loaded a 40-foot container in her home village near Chang Mai in northern Thailand and brought over the fixtures and fittings that made the Swansea restaurant a hit.

That formula has now been repeated, and the contents of a similar container now adorn the Thai Elephant in Cowbridge.

Of course, the decor is only part of great dining experience, and Aum's business partner, Chris Lloyd, said: "The quality of food will always be the key factor, and our success in Swansea makes us confident that people in Cowbridge will like what we have to offer.

"Thai cooking covers a wide range of styles, from quite spicy and piquant curries, to Thai specialities that offer a real aromatic experience.

"Also, almost every item on the menu can be done in a vegetarian style – apart from the considerable numbers of vegetarian dishes that are fixtures on the menu."

The Thai Elephant offers varied starters, and a wide range of main courses – it would take a long time to get through the different styles – and also a range of home-made desserts, including Thai pancakes and deep-fried ice cream!

Cowbridge has another dining out experience to offer residents and visitors, with a real Thai welcome for all!

NEWS FROM THE PENARTH AND DISTRICT RAMBLERS

Pleasant weather marks hike around Castell Dinas

RECENTLY, weather forecasters predicted winds of between 40 to 50 mph on the mountain ranges, but twelve eager ramblers, including from four the Cardiff group, turned out to meet leader Robin and his cocker spaniel Pepper to enjoy a day out in the Black Mountains with the winds thankfully absent.

On the first dry and decent day for the past three weeks, the group made their way to the Castle Inn at Pengenffordd. Located 1,000 feet above sea level the inn is named after Castell Dinas, which overlooks the vil-

In all, the group would be climbing 2,200 feet and making their way to the highest peak in the Black Mountains. Leaving the pub, the group headed off through rather slippery mud and more than one person slithered and skidded, but they made their ascent in safety and after about half an hour reached the top of Castell Dinas.

This is a hill fort and castle standing at 450 metres (1476ft) and was built to defend the Rhiangoll pass between Talgarth and Crickhowell. The site was originally an Iron Age fort and later a fortified Norman castle with stone walls was built there, possibly by William Fitz Osbern or his son Roger de Breteuil, and in 1207 was given to Peter Fitz Herbert by King John. After a rather turbulent history the castle was destroyed by followers of Owain Glyndwr during the 15th century.

Leaving the castle, the group continued their gradual climb, on the long ridge known as the 'dragon's back' across Bwlch Bach and Y Grib. By now the sunshine meant there were fantastic views in all directions and the local gliding club were out taking advantage of the good weather.

Reaching the main ridge, the group turned east and walked on to Waun Fach which stands at 811 metres (2661ft).

Considering it is the highest peak in the Black Mountains, is something of a let down. The summit is composed of peat, which always seems to be boggy, and finding Refreshed, they began their descent along the southwest ridge over southwest ridge over Pen Trumau before joining a steep path down Rhiw Trumau. MIND support group for war veterans

Vale MP backing

ALUN Cairns MP met the MIND in the Vale Veterans Support Group at their regular monthly meeting in Barry.

MIND, together with the Royal British Legion has created the Veterans Support Group to help veterans suffering from post traumatic stress disorder (PTSD), and other psychological illnesses due to their military service. MIND and the Royal British Legion work in partnership with com-munity mental health teams and other voluntary organisations. They offer help, advice and signposting to relevant agencies across a range of issues from benefits to housing problems and social interaction

The Vale MP was keen to find out more about the services that they were now providing for ex-service personnel, particularly with PTSD being a growing area of concern across the UK

Mr Cairns said: When I heard that MIND and the RBL had created a Veterans Support Group I wanted to find out more and was delighted to be invited to join the group at one of their regular meetings.

"Many with mental health problems aren't always understood and this can lead to much greater problems with benefit assessment and the money, time and stress involved with appeal cases at a later stage. To be able to have a service available for Forces personnel in the Vale is really valuable and a great achievement for MIND to extend their provision for service men and women.

PTSD is a serious illness that can affect visit many people, though themselves are often the who have served – to recognise the issue and seek help.

Mr Cairns added:
"Not all war wounds are visible. MIND provide an excellent service and this has now been extended to include service personnel. PTSD is a particularly traumatic illness and I'm pleased that the group can provide support for those suffering from this mental illness

"The MIND Veterans Support Group with the Royal British Legion is an excellent example of ex-service personnel working together with other organisations within an area to pro-vide mutual support and help for those in their community."

The Veteran Support Group meets on the first Thursday of every month at 6pm at the Tynewydd Centre in Barry. If you'd like fur-ther information you can telephone 01446 746191 or visit www.mindinthevale.org.

Let Future Window Solutions add style and space to your home

WE ARE SUPPLIERS and installers of quality energy efficient windows that make your homes warmer, quieter, more secure and that are virtually maintenance free. But with Future we offer much more!

When it comes to adding, extending or making those ever needed changes to your home our team of experts are always on hand. We can help you to design and change your garage to an extra room used for either another bedroom, room for visitors or that much needed space for the kids. It's remarkable what people use their garages for. Garages quickly become storage areas for half-empty pots of paint, lawnmowers, bikes and flat tyres. The potential of this dead space is often just being ignored and that can be a huge mistake - especially when you consider that extra living space comes at a premium!

Company director Craig Harewood says some customers are unaware of the difference between an Orangery and Conservatory so we would like to take the opportunity to explain. With Future Orangeries coming more and more Popular offering their unique style and contemporary look. You can design your Orangery / Conservatory whichever way you wish and that's where we can help you we have a full design package which lets you see your designs attached to your current property before hand, which again Craigs says, helps customers who are unsure of the end result.

An Orangery has a slightly different take on traditional conservatories with their brick pillers and lantern style roof. Orangeries offer more privacy than conservatory styles the interior height provides a breathtaking focal point through which light floods in to your home. Todays orangeries, like conservatory styles, are generally buildings with glazed sides and brick or wood supports. Orangeries use less glass. Conservatory offer more of a traditional style roof ranging from Lean to through to double hip depending on size and style. PLAID POLITICIAN WARNS:

'Welsh voices wil struggle to be heard in Westminster' spokesman for the Vale has pointed out that proposals to reduce the number of MPs in Wales will mean "Welsh voices will struggle be heard" Westminster.

Dr Ian Johnson, who fought as a candidate in the general election in 2010, also insisted that local pockets of rural deprivation, and areas of poverty in Barry, were likely to continue – because they were classed as part of the affluent Vale of Glamorgan constituency.

He explained: "While the num-ber of MPs in Parliament is being cut by 8 per cent from 650 to 600, Welsh MPs are being cut by 25 per cent from 40 to 30.

"This is a far bigger cut than any other country in the UK and means that Welsh voices will

Dr Johnson said he welcomed the notion of Sully returning to the Vale constituency which maintained a mix of both urban and rural areas.

However, he warned there would continue to be problems in addressing deprivation while statistics were analysed at constituency level.

"Although I would like Barry to be a separate constituency on to be a separate constituency on its own, the rules introduced by the Westminster government meant that the town's population is not enough to justify that.

"The problem with the Vale constituency as it stands is that some of the wealth of the rural walks where that exists means."

Vale – where that exists – masks the effects of poverty in some parts of Barry, and, indeed, poverty in other parts of the Vale.

This means that constituency wide statistics do not show the true picture of the area's economic status in the same way that more localised data will do." He explained: "One of the problems of a constituency which is as mixed as the Vale is that con-stituency level data doesn't always illuminate current trends.

"For example, unemployment statistics, such as those recently published don't show up hot-

The Business Centre celebrates its fifth anniversary today!

The Business Centre – where we take care of you while you take care of your business

NE of the Vale's great business success stories in recent years celebrates its fifth anniversary today.

On January 19, 2007, The Business Centre was opened in Barry by the local AM, Jane Hutt, bringing aN exciting new business innovation to the area.

James Mason, the Centre Manager, explained: "The Business Centre provides flexible serviced office space with a host of services, which include the shared office suite, virtual office facilities, conference and meeting room hire and IT Training Suite

"All these excellent facilities are supported by a free in-house gym, free car parking and an on-site cafe, The Coffee Zone.

"The Business Centre also provides extensive business support facilities, such as secretarial services and all the latest technology with IT and telecoms infrastructure helping you concentrate on what's really important, your business."

It means The Business Centre can provide a flexible service, tailored across the whole spectrum, helping new start-up businesses, freelancers or single operators, medium sized businesses and national companies. But the centre offers even more, its own 'break-out' areas, where people can have a quiet chat on sofas outside the office suites, and a designated outdoor area to relax on sunny days. The Business Centre

The Business Centre is part of the familyrun Masons Moving Group Ltd, founded in the Vale in 1905 – with a family inspiration behind it.

James explained that once companies understood the concept of flexible, serviced office space at The Business Centre, they could see the many advantages it has over running their own premises.

He pointed out:
"With companies looking for flexibility in the current climate, lease agreements can bear higher risks, where businesses might have to commit to 10 or 15
year leases – let alone having to set up and fund all the facilities,

"Here at The Business Centre, our commitment to you is to provide your business with a fully serviced office suite, ready for your arrival – with no hassle, no capital outlay and next to no downtime affecting that crucial part of running a business –

The variety of businesses housed on the site is impressive.

James said: 'The companies who operate
from The Business
Centre vary, but are all looking for a cost-effective and efficient service for them to operate their businesses.

"The clientele at the centre varies with a majority of professions operating from serviced offices such as financial consultants, web designers, Curves – the ladies' gym, The Beauty Spot – Hair & Beauty Salon, We Buy Any Car, recruitment consultants, security companies and many more. Over the years our occupancy has steadily increased, but with the economic downturn and the risk factor for all companies increasing, our flexible license agreements, short notice periods and our cost effective office space provides us and businesses a platform to build a strong business model."

In June 1944, The Western Mail carried the following story.

time, the term 'coloured' was the accepted way to describe anyone who was black. It continued to be the accepted word until the 1970s, when the Black Power movement 'reclaimed' the word 'black'. Names have been removed from the report).

where the woman had been a patient for eight-een months. She had been discharged some June 2 returned to the hospital for treatment. About 5 o'clock in the evening, she was taking a path across fields to the Sully bus stop when she was intercepted by the two men in a path overhung by bushes. She was threatened with violence before the offences were committed.

The men later had their sentences commuted to life imprisonment by General Dwight D Eisenhower.

However, another story which ran in the same month shows per-haps how the word of a white GI was held in more esteem.

A white American soldier, Technician 4th Grade_

23, was found not guilty at a court-martial held in South Wales on Monday on a charge of rape, the penalty for which under American military law is death or imprisonment for life. He was acquit-

There was a court of nine American officers, with a colonel as president.

The woman described what happened on the beach at Sully.

At the close of the cross examination, the president said to the complainant: "We must have very definite evi-dence. This court has the power to pass the death sentence. If we seem to be hard with you, it is only so that we can be fair to both sides.'

In reply to questions, the complainant said she bit the accused's hand and tried to scratch him. She had not seen him before that night.

Several witnesses were called, and the evidence of the accused was that the woman did not resist in any way. She agreed to meet him again the following night if she was not working.

After the court had consulted in private, the president announced that the accused was acquit-

It is, however, important to balance regrettable incidents such as these against the outstanding wartime service and sometimes extreme provocation that African-American soldiers were forced to endure, both from white American soldiers and the local populace during their stav in the United

Part of a letter from. as he termed himself, 'a coloured soldier', stationed in Belfast during 1943, made this heartfelt plea:

Regardless to where a man is born or regard-less to his colour, every man has his right to enjoy life here on this earth. Just because I am dark man doesn't mean I am not intelligent.

The anatomy of the white man is the same as the dark man. God creat-ed all men as brothers, and my belief is that since we are all here in Ireland we should live as brothers and sisters and not as enemies. We hate to walk the streets of Belfast merely because we are insulted.

Tensions sometimes ran high between Barry residents and the American troops. In January 1944, the local press carried a story about a fight between white GIs and two local men in the Witchell Hotel in Cadoxton which resulted in the two Americans being hit with broken bottles and beer glasses. Both men required stitches in their faces and heads.

Yet for the most part, the Americans, whatever colour their skin was. were welcomed into the local community. At a recent event at Pontypridd Memorial, where fellow historians and I staged an exhibition of wartime artefacts and memorabilia in sup-port of the dedication of the new Pontypridd War Memorial, a visitor told me the following story.

During the Second World War black American troops were stationed in the Pontypridd district. His mother and father became friendly with several of them and invited them to their home for Sunday lunch This became a regular occur-

One evening the father and one of the visitors decided to go to the local pub for a drink. On the way they were approached by a group of white GIs. The black GI stepped off the pave-ment into the road to allow the white soldiers

The father asked why he had done that and was told in no uncertain terms that that was what was expected in America. He replied with this, "All week long I work down the pit and at the end of a shift my face is the same colour as yours. While you are with me you'll never do that again.

Years after the War had ended, there was a knock on the door and the gentleman who told me this story answered it. The same American stood there with his wife and two children. He had come back to Wales to show his family the Welsh people who had been so kind to him during the War.
The African-American soldiers were stationed in two areas in the Vale – Penarth and Barry. As of December 31, 1943, there were just two units based in Barry, the 413 Engineer Dump Truck Company and the 95

Road) and three in Penarth (housed in tents

Primary School – very marshy land). It appears from anecdotal evidence that the local inhabitants were unsympathetic to the racist conduct of many white GIs and this was evident in the way the soldiers were received in the area. The black soldiers would often travel to Cardiff to the Colonial Club and other clubs in Bute Street, where the multi-cultural nature of Cardiff Docks would have led to fewer issues

By December 1944, they were gone, shipped to France to help supply the vast American forces moving into Germany.

One famous African-American who may have come to Barry during the War was the great boxer Joe Louis. In June 1944, Louis fought an exhibi-tion bout in Newport. The event took place at the Newport Athletic Club ground (Rodney Parade). The 'Brown Bomber' sparred with a Golden Gloves winner called Keen Simmons.

At the time, Louis was serving in the US Army and his role was to take part in morale-boosting exhibition fights and meet the troops. Although he was a sporting superstar at the time, purses for his shows (including the Newport one) were handed straight over to the US government. (After the War had ended he found he was liable for the tax ation on these purses!) Apparently Louis stayed at the G-40 American camp in Barry for one or two nights.

The black American troops made an enormous contribution to the war effort, not just supplying troops but in combat as well. They were a resource much underused by the American military

Their record is a proud one and these men deserve to be remem bered in the Vale for far more than just one unfor tunate incident.

The 'Wartime Weekend' being held to commemorate the 70th anniversary of the American troops coming to the Vale of Glamorgan will take place over th weekend of June 16/17 on Barry Waterfront.

Further details can be found at www.barryat-war.info. Jonathan Hicks can be contacted on 07708 255295.

The GEM is delighted to announce its support for this fabulous event and readers can look for ward to many articles and features on the presence of the American troops in the Vale in the period leading up to the living history weekend.

The Vale of Glamorgan Building Excellence Awards 2012

The Building Excellence Awards are organised by the Building Control Group at the Vale of Glamorgan Council.

The Building Control Surveyors from the Building Control Group have nominated builders who have achieved high quality building work in the following categories:

- EXTENSION/ALTERATION
- HOME CONVERSION/ NEW DWELLINGS
- SOCIAL AFFORDABLE HOUSING
- PUBLIC/COMMUNITY BUILDINGS
- COMMERCIAL PROJECTS

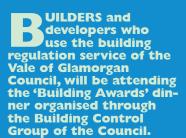

Criteria:

- Compliance with building regulations and energy efficiency
- Supplying and managing information (giving of notices and information relative to the work)
- Speed of fault rectification
- Site environment, safety and storage of materials (so as not to be detrimental to their use)
- Client/customer satisfaction

For the ninth year in succession, it will be held at the Best Western Mount Sorrel Hotel, Barry, on

The nominations for the awards are provided by the council's Building Control Surveyors, who are responsible for the supervision of the projects as they progress on site, through to the completion of build-

Coun Jeffery James, Cabinet Member for Planning and Transportation at the Vale of Glamorgan Council, stated:

This is the ninth successive year of the 'Building Awards' and I have great pleasure in providing recognition to builders and developers who are determined to provide a highquality customer-orientated service.

"The nominations go to show yet again that there are several excel-lent examples of high-quality con-struction projects that have been undertaken within the Vale of Glamorgan. Ensuring that buildings current building regulations requires a very high standard of workmanship, and the builders nominated this year have proven that they can meet this requirement'

Marcus Goldsworthy, Operational Manager for the Development and Building Control Group, said:

Building regulations have a key role whenever you decide to make alterations, extend or construct new buildings. With recent changes to the planning process and the devolu-tion of the building regulations to the Welsh Assembly; reducing car-bon emissions will now be at the forefront of the development process. Everyone has a part to play in conserving energy and reducing carbon emissions – whether we are homeowners seeking to extend our homes – or developers taking forward a major new scheme.

"Changing the way we construct buildings to make them more sustainable will be a big challenge for all involved in the industry".

The Development and Building Control Group falls within the Planning and Transportation Division of the Vale of Glamorgan Council, whose Head of Service, Rob

Thomas, stated:

"Development of any size has a major impact on the day-to-day lives of people who are undertaking building projects. Ultimately, it is the builder who has the major responsibility in satisfying, not only the customer needs, but also the terms of the legislation.

"The Building Awards will provide all those involved with well-deserved recognition for consistently carrying out work of a high standard

The Vale of Glamorgan Council would also like to thank all the sponsors of this event, without whom it would not be possible to recognise the builders and developers whose quality of work is making a positive difference to the environment of the Vale of Glamorgan.

Winners of the Vale event will go forward to the LABC south Wales 'Building Awards' dinner at the Vale of Glamorgan Golf & Spa Resort, Hensol, on April 20. This will be hosted by television and radio personality Jason Mohammed.

The ultimate achievement can be recognised at national level, where the winners of the south Wales event will be nominated into the LABC 'National Building Awards' which will include nominations from most of the local authorities throughout Wales and England.

It will be held in London in November this year.

Extension/Alterations

3 Castlewood Cottages, Dinas Powys

THE work comprises a two-storey extension to the rear of this traditional, brickbuilt cottage.

It was carried out under a building notice, which required the builder and Building Control (BC) Surveyor to work closely together, as the work was not pre-approved by BC.

The builder chose to use matching imperial bricks laid to the same traditional bond as the cottage, to ensure that the extension was in character with the local surroundings.

The builder carefully matched the window style and other details, such as the floor tiles, to achieve an understated but outstanding contemporary extension

THIS project involved significant remodelling to both single and two-storey extensions to the front, side and rear of the original house. The work has totally transformed a rather mundane building into a new home with a crisp modern style and finish.

Due to the extensive changes, this was a complicated task for the builder who appeared to relish the challenge. Executed under a 'building notice', the project required close liaison between all of the parties

We are delighted to be nominated for the Building Excellence Awards

Woodside Cottage, Westra, Dinas Powys

Agent: Mr G Beer

Agent: Architect Oriel Design Ltd.,

Steven Price

Contractor: Gibbons Bros., St. Brides, Newport

THE talented builder had a genuine desire to do a good job and work closely with the local authority building inspector. The work included demolishing an earlier, small extension, that was of basic design without any real relation to the existing cottage.

The property is the left hand cottage of a pair and the sloping site's poor access was an extra challenge to the builder. The new extension has been carefully detailed to blend with the character of the cottage and mirror the extension previously constructed on the other end of the pair of cottages. The front windows have been specially made and the arches with keystones carefully constructed to match the original.

The ground floor has a large kitchen with dining space and a rear sun room. The first floor comprises a bedroom, family bathroom and ensuite to a bedroom. The work is of a very high standard, which is enhanced by the high quality materials selected by the builder.

We are delighted to be nominated for the Vale of Glamorgan Building Excellence Awards 2012

New Dwelling/Home Conversion

5, Raisdale Road, Penarth

Agent: Mr C Le Guilcher, Penarth

THE application for this new dwelling was originally submitted as an extension, with significant alterations to an existing detached prop erty. The extent of the work was such that very little of the original property remained and waś, therefore, demolished – to allow a com pletely new build.

The new dwelling features colonial style columns, window surrounds and face brick detailing, to create a three-storey property. A large open hallway with a feature staircase, leads to four ensuite bedrooms and family bathrooms on the first floor level; and attic trusses allow the creation of two additional bedrooms within the roof space.

During the course of construction, an attached swimming pool room, and detached garage were added, to complete a dwelling of considerable substance.

New House, Maes Melyn, Cowbridge

THIS application was originally submitted as 'remodelling' of an existing dwelling. However, due to the extent of demolition required, it was then re-constructed as a new dwelling.

The modernistic design of substantially glazed walls and mono-pitched roofs is in complete contrast to the traditional surrounding dwellings, yet due to the retention of much landscaping it fits neatly into the area. The interior features a large open plan hallway and gallery landing, with glazed balustrading. Four bedrooms and ensuite bathrooms occupy the first floor, with access onto a front-facing balcony.

The architect chose a 'full plans option' with supporting structural and SAP calculations while the builder/owner maintained regular contact with Building Control to satisfy all elements of construction.

Agent: Nigel Arnold Architect, Penarth

Contractor: RT (Contractors) Ltd

Barn 2, Redfarm, Llangan

Agent: Allan Shaw of Porthcawl Contractor: Jonathan David

THIS is the second of three barns to be converted adjacent to Red Farm, Llangan. The build-ing comprises a two-storey granary and two single-storey wings.

Due to considerable deterioration of the roof structure, new oak trusses were made to duplicate the profile of the existing trusses, and the entire roof was recovered in natural slate.

The features of the stone work to the external walls were enhanced by neat re-pointing and some new openings were made by replicating the existing quoin work and arch detailing.

The thermal linings to floors walls and roof ensure an energy efficient building with consider able character. The builder chose the 'building notice' option, together with all supporting information, and maintained close contact and co-operation with Building Control.

Pier 64, Penarth Portway Marina

THE building consists of two storeys, with a ground floor restaurant and first floor offices. It is a piled steelwork structure with Bison concrete units which are suspended over the water, giving unobstructed views of the marina.

The initial stages were undertaken with the aid of a long reach digger and divers to clear the rock base under water. Steel piles were installed to protect the piling work, and a floating pontoon was also used to enable some of the piling work. The building has been constructed to the highest standard, including sound deadening to the internal wall panels and finished to give a complementary aspect to its surroundings.

The completed work has resulted in a cedar clad waterfront building which stands on stilts above the adjoining marina, with a balcony facing the water and a timber brie soliel (solar shading) to the front elevation. It has been linked to the marina level with walkways, to entice local boat owners to use the restaurant.

The project complies with all aspects of the regulations and achieves a BREAM excellent standard. It has resulted in an exceptional building which complements the high standard of internal finishes.

The developer/owners have ensured that Building Control have been involved at every stage of the work, with exceptional communication between the site team and the building control officers.

THIS unit has been constructed on the site of the former Cadoxton House, which was demolished due to its structural condition.

The new unit is also called Cadoxton House and is to be used as a Community Advice Centre, which will be shared by the Vale of Glamorgan

Council and the South Wales Police.

The proposed development has essentially replicated the former building in design.

The site has twostoreys at the front elevation with threestoreys to the rear, and security was especially important.

As the unit is constructed on a split site and the end user is from a vulnerable area of society, a number of complex fire and building issues had to be resolved.

These required a close working relationship with the Client, Architect, Contractor, Fire Service and Building Control.

The site was well managed and a high level of communication between Contractor and Building Control was maintained throughout

Medical Centre, Cowbridge

Developer: Stepnell Limited Agent: Powell Dobson Architects of St. Mellons

THIS is a two-storey medical centre with offices for three doctor practices and community care team.

The construction consisted of precast reinforced concrete foundations; steel portal frame with traditional masonry, and steel sheet roof finish – all completed to an excellent standard.

The contractor's policy was to use local labour throughout the project wherever possible.

The means-ofescape route for the building was an engineering design agreed with the Fire Service, architects and Building Control.

The project was extremely well managed, and on-site teams and designers have produced a quality building.

This has been demonstrated from the, foundations through to completion.

All building regulations questions and comments were addressed through the excellent communication between the site manager, the architect, and Building Control.

THE development dwellings and two blocks of five and sixstorey apartments.

They were constructed using precast concrete pile foundations and beam and block floors. The traditional masonry construction includes flat roofs, cream-coloured rendering with colour-rendered panels, and Juliet-type balconies to the front elevations.

A number of the dwellings were constructed in accordance with Code level 3, for sustainable homes.

Throughout the development of this project, numerous site meetings were held with the building contractor and the design team so that any technical issues which arose, were resolved at an early stage.

The high standard of work manship, specification and the waterfront location make it a highlydesirable place in which

PRIOR to this development, the site was vacant wasteland on an existing Newydd Housing estate.

Comprising three 2bedroom adapted timber frame dwellings, the development has provided homes specific and sensitive to the needs of each resident.

They include automated doors and windows, level access shower rooms and pre-designed lift shafts.

The development

also attained the coveted Code level 3 under the Code for Sustainable Homes over and above the energy requirements set out in the Building Regulations.

The exemplary standard of workmanship was evident during the air permeability testing with the results achieved distinctly above the targets set out at the design stage.

A professional attitude and skilled approach was demonstrated by the contractors throughout the project, earning well- deserved praise from all corners.

An excellent relationship was maintained throughout the project between the contractor, architect, building control officer and LABC warranty surveyor.

A quintessential development that fully represents the values and philosophies of the Building Excellence Awards, the Ffordd Elin project is a fitting inclusion in this year's nominations.

Councillor John Clifford, the Mayor of the Vale or Glamorgan, is pleased to be associated with the Council's Building Control Group's ninth 'Building Awards' and wishes every success to the nominees.

JPL Sound & Communications have provided the sound and audio visual equipment to the Vale of Glamorgan Building Control Awards for a number of years, as well as supplying our services to a lot of other departments within the Vale Council. JPL Sound are pleased to be one of the sponsors of this year's awards ceremony.

In common with many local building contractors who use modern materials in their building designs, we at JPL Sound continue to use the latest technology and ensure that we listen to our customers' requirements when pur chasing new equipment.

For business and corporate events, large Plasma Screens have become the norm when images need to be displayed – although modern LCD front or rear projection is used for the bigger display screens.

In the business environment, our latest 'Flat

Riot police go on a Commons tour

Mr Cairns said: "It was a privilege to greet and meet the officers. Back in August, I had been particularly proud to see some of their col-leagues from the Vale in action, when I visited Peckham during the riots.

"Our local officers had arrived in London in the midst of the violence and showed no fear in seeking to bring order. This visit to Westminster allows us to show our recognition and thanks for all their commitment during some very trying and difficult times

'RESTORE THE MOBILE LIBRARY'

AM writing in reply to Mr -Colin Wood's recent letter about the reinstatement of the mobile library service in the Vale.

Well, here is an Independent who, if reelected to the council in May, would also support this essential service being returned to the

This is not about being a vote winner, but about helping those who are not able to get out and about to have a service on their doorstep.

So many people relied on this service and for the Conservatives to cut it was, I feel, a cruel act. I hope Mr Wood would understand that this matter is not about party politics, but about commonsense. I have been approached by residents, including pensioner groups, about the loss of the mobile library service and their wish to have it restored. With the 2012 local government elections fast approaching, no doubt there will be plenty of discussions and debate on all sorts of issues and I would urge everyone, including Mr Wood, to get involved.

The mobile library is a service that people want and need - and I would, therefore, have no problem in trying to get it reinstated. Coun Richard Bertin,

Age Alliance lists priorities

Vale Housing Federation were invited to the Senedd bv Age Alliance for a meeting with the local Assembly Member, Jane Hutt, to discuss their plans for a growing population.

Sarah Rochira, Chair of Alliance Wales, gave an excellent presentation and explained the three main key areas that older people had decided, "after consultation", they would like the Welsh Government to urgently deal with.

Key Message one: Older people and carers must have access to early intervention and MEMBERS of the preventative care services to help maintain their health and wellbeing.

Key Message two: lder people need Older Older people need access to learning and training to allow them to develop skills that they would need to support them in later life.

Key Message three: Older people must have the support, information and access to re-ablement services that they would need to regain their independence, and quality of life.

Two older speakers gave a very serious, but amusing, speech from a personal perspective.

Gwenda Thomas AM,

Deputy Minister, was the last speaker and she gave her support and a com-mitment to the three key messages.

The game started and The game started and Welshpool instantly showed their eagerness to win with some decisive tackling and instant pressure, catching the Bombettes off guard and driving into Barry's 22 with some well-executed back lines and quick ball.

The Bombettes quickly found their pace and regained their composure with some counter pressure which quickly got them Welshpool's 22.

With further pressure from the back line Judie Cole travelled a good 15 yards to crash over the line to score the first try: this conversion was narrowly missed.

Welshpool again piled on the pressure feeling the more determined to equal the score line, however their repeated attempts, despite making it to Barry's 5 metre line on a couple of occasions, were unsuccessful.

Kia Rio offers value for money and good design

by TIM SAUNDERS

VALUE for money and good design don't often go together.

But the third generation Kia Rio hatchback, launched in March, shows that it

With a side profile not that dissimilar to the well-styled and curvaceous Seat Ibiza or Leon, the range starts from around £10,500 and rises to just under £15,000.

From inside, the Rio 1.4 diesel tested is a little noisy on start-up, putting it in similar territory to my 2002 plate 1.4-litre diesel Ford Fiesta. It also judders when stationary and could do with a little more sound proofing inside.

Due to seasonal empty roads, there's adequate opportunity to travel at just 56mph during my 50-mile commute and still arrive at my destina-tion with plenty of time to spare. Usually I have to drive like a bat out of hell, which doesn't help the environment or my pocket. The reason you buy a 1.4 diesel is for efficiency and the little Rio doesn't let you down here, easily delivering 50mpg. The manufac-turer claims it will return a combined reading of as much as 69mpg, but I feel this a little optimistic.

The air conditioning automatically comes on each time the ignition is turned, which might be fine in the summer but wholly unnecessary in the winter. There doesn't seem to be any way of switching this off.

However, overall the well-designed interior is pleasing to the eye and easy to navigate your way round. The seats are supportive, good quality fabrics have been used, there's a decent driving position and the six-speed gearbox is pretty deci-

Parkers, the car experts, state: "Kia's latest Rio is no longer the wallflower of old, with a new look and the potential to unsettle European rivals. It isn't as aggressively styled as its sibling, the Picanto, but its striking 'bow-tie' grille and large headlamps give the front end a bold stance.

"The swooping roofline gives it a coupe look, making this Rio much more eyecatching. It's longer, lower in height and wider than its predecessor, so the new Rio has grown up in more ways than one. Kia has pitched the Rio into the midst of a very competitive class. Its rivals include the Renault Clio, Peugeot 207, Toyota Yaris, Volkswagen Polo and class-leading Ford Fiesta – but they all have a fight on their hands with the new

Barry enterprise is rewarded with well deserved away win ter about wind, underfoot conditions, weather or the ambient temperature?

It didn't last Saturday as both teams set out to prove they wanted to play the game despite the conditions.

Barry were first to commit an error when a kick out-of-hand went straight into touch. The home team were able to recycle the ball from the ensuing lineout and set up a position from which they gained a penalty opportunity. The kick, however, rebounded from an upright and Barry were able to clear Llandaff North were not to be denied and went in search of the first score, and some weak tackling let them in for a good try wide out. The conversion was unsuccessful.

Barry surged into attack from the restart with the forwards, most notably Degaura, making good ground. They were unlucky not to open their account when Lee miscued a penalty from 40 metres

With Busitil on for the injured Ryan, the visitors put together play, but they were out-done by using the passing game out of defence, when kicking deep may have produced better dividends.

Barry now suffered the same fate as the opposition when a opposition penalty attempt struck the woodwork and bounced safely into a defender's grateful arms. With half time looming, Lee did put Barry onto the score sheet with a sweetlystruck penalty.

Immediately on the restart, the Barry backs came alive and produced a gem of a try when Adams collected his kick-ahead swoop over near the posts. Lee's conversion was a formality.

The home pack then embarked upon a long period of domination and got just reward with a short range try at the corner flag. The conversion attempt was unsuc-cessful from so far out.

Barry retaliated with another well-taken try from Adams, but the Llandaff North defence prevented him from getting near the posts. This gave Lee too much to do with the conversion effort. Thereafter, the game swayed from end to end with both sides having opportunities to add to tally. Unsurprisingly, given heavy conditions underfoot, both sides began to tire and mistakes crept in to the play. In the gathering gloom, Barry introduced substitutes and to their credit each one contributed manfully. For the last 10 minutes. Llandaff pressurised the Barry defence almost continuously and it is to be applauded that

Loss for Barry seconds

ON a bitterly cold Saturday afternoon, 2nd Barry returned to action against Heol y Cyw, who were flying high in their league.

The home side welcomed back Lee Jones into the pack, while Joel Williams was switched back to scrum-half to partner Adam Lee in the half-back division.

Veteran Jason Evans returned to the bench while Jordan Jones awaited his debut as one of the replacements.

The match began with immaculately observed minute's silence, but the opening was ferocious for both sides.

With conditions best suited for forwards rugby, the away side negated the power of the Barry pack by requesting for uncontested scrums.

The Barry tight five, however, made their weight count in the close-quarter contest, repeatedly pushing into the opposition territory. Heol y Cyw were obviously well-drilled and they had two players who tried to break the gain line. The Barry defence, The Barry defence, however, stood firm, with outstanding contribution from Dave Hosking and captain Kyle Case.

Some good work in the tight, where Nick Rolfe and Owain Poole were notable, allowed the green-and-whites to reg-ularly turn over ball or

While there was commendable work by the forwards, the lightly employed Barry backs were doing themselves no favours.

There was the usual collection of dropped balls, poor distribution and mediocre kicking which allowed the away side to come back into the game.

It was fitting, there-

With Lee in the bin at the start of the second half, any momentum half, any momentum from the home side was immediately lost, and they found themselves defending for their lives.

When Tom Poole, who had moved to stand-off with Lee's absence, took a fraction too long to clear the lines, his kick was charged down and the result was another converted try.

Barry attempted to rally, with fresh legs in the shape of the rejuve-nated Jason Evans, Houldey and Hall all on as replacements, but while there were occasions where they made territory, any chance of a comeback was ended later on as the visitors scored underneath the posts again.

They did manage to briefly threaten the away try-line, but in the end it was the other side who scored the final try of the game to make it 26-0.

It was a valiant effort for all of the players who made it onto the field, which was commendable but ultimately lapses in defence yet again cost the side dear.

Good away win for Dinas Powys AFTER the previous week's lacklustre performance, Dinas got back to winning ways with a much improved showing and, if it wasn't for some superb saves by the Caldicot keeper Gareth Williams, particularly in the second half, the scoreline could have been a lot wider.

Dinas started well and in the first minute had a good chance when Liam Jeremy crossed from the left to Matt Trottman, who clipped a volley towards goal which went just the wrong side of the Then from the other wing Trottman found Gareth Tedstone and his header hit an upright and was cleared.

Jeremy was giving the home side's right back Simon Crook a torrid time, turning inside and then out and providing a succession of crosses.

He then took a free which Joe Hinds headed just wide of the far post on 25 minutes.

Five minutes later Tedstone, back in the starting line-up after a long injury lay-off, used his pace well to beat his marker but his shot was also just wide. The hosts did have some half chances but the Dinas rearguard were on good form and keeper Damian Lack was never really tested. At the other end from a corner, Dave Penikett headed towards goal but Williams dived to push the ball away for

At this stage the visi-tors were beginning to get on top and the final chance of the half fell to Trottman who, after a jinking run, shot just wide and Dinas were wondering if they would pay for not taking their numerous chances

Dinas started the second half in the ascendanond nair in the ascendan-cy again with Jeremy forcing Williams into another fine save after just two minutes.

At the other end Luke Harris, who had been one of Caldicot's best players in the first half, latched onto a corner to shoot just wide of the Dinas upright.

This seemed to spur Dinas on and they exerted more and more pres-sure on the hosts' goal with Tedstone putting in a dangerous low cross which the overworked Williams managed to cut out.

Soon after this Dinas were awarded a free kick from 25 yards which Adam Raymond powered low at the keeper. He could only parry it and Joe Hinds following uo looked to have scored but again Williams par-ried his shot and the danger was cleared.

Tedstone and Trottman.

Dinas were well on top by this stage and a cross from Fowler was volleyed by Davies with the Caldicot shot stopper again called into action, taking the shot just under his cross-bar.

The hosts had a couple of chances late on when Simon Crook had a speculative shot from 30 yards which 30 yards which was wide, but then the Caldicot skipper James Munday had a good effort well saved by Damian Lack.

In the dying moment Robbie Fowler brought another fine save from overworked Williams
